

Attention Military Families

Robinson High School has a Military Family Life Counselor (MFLC) to help students deal with the unique challenges faced by military families. Through confidential, non-medical counseling, Mrs. Bush can address issues such as coping with COVID-19, deployment, reintegration, moving, planning for life after high school, self-esteem, resolving conflicts, dealing with family and peer relationships, communication, bullying, behavioral management techniques and more.

She works closely with RHS staff to support and encourage our military students with various programs and activities throughout the year. She is available to meet in person, by phone or video. Contact Mrs. Bush today!
